PROCESSING PURPOSES

Our website uses Cookies, text files sent from the website to the user terminal (usually a browser), where they are being stored.

There are several types of cookies as shown below.

Technical cookies work in a completely anonymous way and are used to improve website use and to store some choices.

Statistical cookies (or analytical) allow to collect and analyze anonymously information on users' behavior. With analytical cookies, YCLOS srl collects statistical data, monitors sessions and stores data on the website usage. Thanks to some technical measures, these cookies, as the technical ones, do not allow collection of personal information, user identification via IP address and are not used in any way for marketing purposes.

PROCESSING METHODS

In particular, the website <http://www.yclos.it> uses different types of cookies:

TECHNICAL AND ANALYTICAL / STATISTICAL COOKIES

- They are basically text information saved on user devices used to connect to the website. These cookies are used to provide a correct website navigation or to provide a service requested by the user. These are the only purposes they are used for and are usually installed by the website owner.
- Matomo cookies, are used to collect and process your navigation data, addresses in URI notation of the requested resources, requests time and the size of the reply; data are only collected in order to process anonymous statistical information on website use (pages visited, sessions length, geographical area of the requests, etc.) and to assure its correct operation; for Matomo cookies we use the IP address anonymization.

These technical and analytical/statistical cookies, do not collect personal information nor try to match your IP address to your identity and are not used in any way for marketing purposes.

RETENTION PERIOD

Technical cookies are stored on user devices to allow website navigation and to provide the offered services. Their presence could last over the navigation session for later accesses. For third-party analytical / statistical cookies, as in the case of Google Analytics, the data, collected in anonymous and aggregate form, is stored within Google Analytics for 2 years, to allow us to compare statistics over that period.
